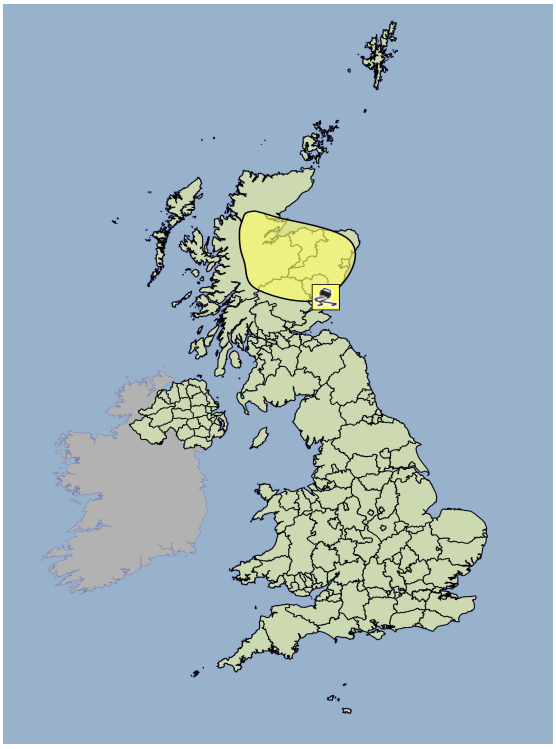
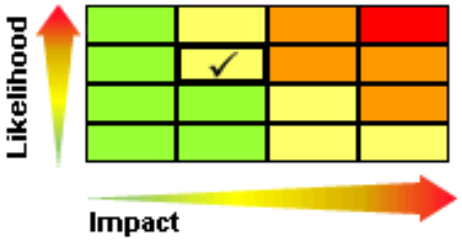
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A depression bringing a mix of rain, sleet and snow will clear east into the North Sea on Saturday night. A ridge of high pressure in its wake will allow the weather to turn drier. However, roads will remain cold and wet, allowing ice to form.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 03:00 on Sun, 27th Dec 2015 until 11:00 on Sun, 27th Dec 2015

Rain and snow will clear during the early hours of Sunday. As skies clear and winds fall light, ice will readily form on untreated surfaces leading to hazardous driving conditions overnight and into Sunday morning.

Please be aware of this wintry hazard.
